

Adapted IOP utilizes the Seven Challenges Model for youth with substance use/abuse concerns focuses not only on the individual in recovery but also the whole family system impacting the client. It encourages change of behavior, provides family and individual education about substance use/abuse, and introduces relapse prevention. The program focuses on learning how to make positive life changes and choices, supporting group services outside of the program, and encouraging family involvement.

Brief Seven Challenges helps to secure a client's interest and buy-in on a course of treatment, or when an assessment indicates that a lower level of intervention is required. Brief Seven Challenges is designed as a short-term intervention to provide an assessment of drug and co-occurring problems, brief therapy interventions for drug problems, and support in responding to external pressures for abstinence.

Seeking Safety provides support to adult clients with trauma and substance abuse. Attaining safety is the main goal of treatment, and the Seeking Safety Model combines cognitive-behavioral, interpersonal and as-needed case management supports to address both trauma and substance abuse simultaneously.

MST Contingency Management is an Multisystemic Therapy adaptation proven to be effective with youth with substance use and abuse issues. This evidence-based treatment engages both the client directly and greater social systems they operate within: family, school, work, and community.

Thriving Kids® Parenting Program is a 16-week, intensive parenting curriculum designed to improve overall family health and success. The program is presented by SWFGC and is trauma and developmentally informed, and largely based on the latest research and work in Interpersonal Neurobiology.

Sandoval County Juvenile Drug Court is designed to address the individual needs of youth who struggle with drug and alcohol abuse utilizing multiple interventions including: drug testing, individual/family/group counseling, youth support services, regular court appearances, and educational opportunities. Both the Sandoval County Drug Court and Adapted IOP Programs utilize the Seven Challenges treatment model.

Individual & Family Therapy After assessment, it is sometimes determined that an identified client, or specific family members impacted by the clients substance abuse, receive their own individual therapy. This decision is made collaboratively with the client and family to offer individualized support, or to address specific drivers that may impede their ability to reduce, eliminate, or abstain from substance use.

Addiction Services are available to clients who require additional services such as medication management, detox, psychiatric services or Adult IOP via a strategic partnership. Case management services provided as required.

Case Management services include up to 10 hours of community based care coordination/case management for clients and/or families that require additional support. This may include assisting the coordination of health, social, education and other services that would assist the client or family.
